King Corn Friday Jan 29, 7PM Vestry,
with director Ian Cheney in attendance.

a documentary movie about two-friends, one acre of corn, and the subsidized crop that drives our fast-food nation. The two friends from the east coast move to the heartland to learn where their food comes from. With the help of friendly neighbors, genetically modified seeds, corn on one acre of Iowa soil. But when they try to follow their pile of corn into the food system, what they find raised troubling questions about how we eat -- and how we farm.

Flow Tuesday, Feb 9, 7 PM Vestry

Irena Salina's award-winning documentary investigation into what experts label the most important political and environmental issue of the 21st Century - The World Water Crisis. Salina documents the growing privatization of the world's dwindling fresh water supply and the emergence of a domineering world water cartel. FLOW also gives viewers a look at practical solutions to the water crisis and developing new technologies, which are fast becoming blueprints for a successful global and economic turnaround.

No Impact Man Friday, Feb 12, 7 PM Vestry

Follow one Saving the world, one family at a time. Follow the Manhattan-based Beavan family as they abandon their high-consumption 5th Avenue life-style and try to live a year while making no net environmental impact.

Food, Inc. Friday, Feb 19, Christ Church TBA

Filmmaker Robert Kenner lifts the veil on America's food industry. Our nation's food supply is now controlled by a handful of corporations that often put profit ahead of consumer health, the livelihood of the American farmer, the safety of workers and our own environment. We have bigger-breasted chickens, the perfect pork chop, herbicide-resistant soybean seeds, even tomatoes that won't go bad, but we also have new strains of E. coli—the harmful bacteria that causes illness for an estimated 73,000 Americans annually. We are riddled with widespread obesity, particularly among children, and an epidemic level of diabetes among adults.
